

Course Description

This course can be studied without any prior knowledge or can be studied as a follow-up programme from our original level 3 Criminology course.

In this course we will examine the topic of the history of crime and punishment. We will briefly examine different theories of offending before examining the psychology of violent crime in some detail. The examination of the psychology of violent crime provides a useful introduction to forensic psychology and offender profiling.

We also examine the psychology of terrorist crimes, domestic violence, drug abuse and youth crime and victimology, before taking a look at crime prevention and community safety and the criminal justice system and those involved in its management.

Assessment

At the end of each section are a number of activities, 50% of which are designed to get you to organise the information you have acquired into a format that you feel comfortable with. You are also required to write 2 x 500 word essays after completing each section. It is only the essays that need be submitted for assessment.

For those of you who have been away from academia for some time, there are some tips on how you might want to structure your essays.
